

Emerging Emergencies in Human Clinical Research in Latin America

Among Latin American countries, Colombia stands out prominently as a hotspot for Medical Device CRO operations. With its strategic geographical location, well-established healthcare facilities, and supportive regulatory environment, Colombia has become a preferred destination for conducting clinical trials and research endeavors related to medical devices.

