And made a new decision concerning Lionel Messi's Argentina, ensuring they remain a strong contender in the upcoming FIFA World Cup 2026. Colombia played a tough 1-0 loss to Argentina, with Lautaro Martinez scoring the crucial goal in the second half of additional time.

Shortly after this match, FIFA's Disciplinary Committee imposed a sanction on the Colombian national team, affecting their upcoming Football World Cup 2026 qualifying match.

The penalty involves reducing the capacity of Barranquilla's Estadio Metropolitano by 25% for their September 10 match against Argentina due to the unruly behavior of Colombian fans during earlier FIFA World Cup qualifiers against Chile and Uruguay. On the other hand, Argentina is experiencing a series of positive developments as they prepare for the FIFA World Cup 2026.

Football World Cup 2026 Tickets: Messi's Determination to Lead Argentina Despite Injury

Despite fears over Lionel Messi's handiness due to a right ankle muscle injury, the Argentine captain has conveyed his desire to contribute to the upcoming FIFA 2026 qualifiers. This determination adds to the team's momentum as they approach the World Cup. Initially, FIFA had certified Argentina for homophobic tunes, reducing the ability of Estadio Monumental by 50% for their September 5 qualifier against Chile, part of the seventh round of the South American FIFA 2026 World Cup qualifiers.

However, following an appeal by the Argentine Football Association, FIFA reconsidered and reduced the sanction to 25% capacity, allowing approximately 63,000 fans to attend the match. This change strengthens Argentina's position as they aim to secure their place in the FIFA 2026 tournament. Argentina not only benefits from the reduced capacity in Colombia due to FIFA's sanctions but also gains an extra day of rest before facing Colombia in the World Cup qualifiers.

FIFA World Cup 2026 Tickets: Roberto Martinez on Ronaldo's Future with Portugal

Ronaldo's former teammate, Rio Ferdinand, provided an update on the striker's future, suggesting that Ronaldo could continue playing for another three years, potentially making an appearance at the Football World Cup 2026. Portugal's leaving from Euro 2024 after a quarter-final loss to France in a penalty shootout has high questions about Ronaldo's future.

However, head coach Roberto Martinez stated that it is too soon to discuss any individual decisions regarding Ronaldo's retirement. Despite the setback, media reports indicate that Ronaldo has not yet decided on retirement and is likely to remain active for the next few years, potentially aiming for the FIFA 2026 tournament.

Ronaldo has been a key figure for Portugal, representing his country in six Euros and four World Cups, including the upcoming FIFA World Cup 2026. He holds the record for the most international goals with 130 for Portugal and is the country's most-capped player. Ronaldo has played a significant role in Portugal's success, helping them reach the finals of Euro 2004 and winning Euro 2016.
