

Mirror Work Lehenga Choli Online Shopping

It is rightly said that Gujarat has given India the greatest heritage in embroidery work and craft through its famous and versatile Kutch embroidery. The hub of the Kutch embroidery work is basically located in the regions of Kutch and Saurashtra wherein the local artisans churn out the most creative and exquisite designs. Kutch embroidery of varied kinds are quite a part of their traditional dresses, shawls and turbans along with other accessories. Exclusive embroideries are performed specially during marriages as a part of the wealth offered to the bride.

picture courtesy :Cbazaar

From mirror and bead work to Abhala embroidery along with the usage of silk threads of bright colors, the Kutch embroidery basically ornate the entire fabric and embellishes it completely. The impeccable designs of Kutch embroidery is a tribute to Rabaris, a nomadic tribe that crafted the art of Kutch embroidery which is now an artwork of international repute.

picture courtesy :Cbazaar

Great Ways To Flaunt Kutch Embroidered Ethnic Wear :

Kutch embroidery reflects an evolving expression of the art and craft as well as textile traditions of a nomadic tribe in Gujarat commonly known as Rabaris. This very kind of embroidery is performed through usage of cotton or silk-threads on cotton cloth. There are specific styles that make use of silk and satin like material.

picture courtesy :Cbazaar

Pepper up Your Style with Mirror Work Or Kutch Work Lehenga :

Mirror work Or Kutch Work is back in vogue. Indian ethnic wear embellished with traditional sheesha or mirror work look splendorous. The Mirror work lehenga has been popular since ages, especially one that comes from the Kutch region. But women only prefer wearing them during Navratri while performing Dandiya Raas or Garbha dance. But in recent times, this long lost art form has grabbed the limelight once again.

picture courtesy :Cbazaar

Mirror Work existed from the 17th century and at that time items such as mica, beetle, silver coins or tin were embroidered in fabric. The use of designer mirrors for sheesha embroidery was introduced during the Mughal Empire. The tradition is still being followed with Mirror work lehenga choli. Earlier, glass pieces used for embroidery were blown to shape and then cut to fit into the design. These days, designer mirrors are readily available at retail stores.

picture courtesy :Cbazaar

Brings a beautiful world of embroidery to you with its exclusive collection of mirror work lehengas. These can be printed lehengas or embroidered lehengas and come in unique and innovative designs. Sequins work or beads work on lehengas is added to accentuate the look of the outfit. Patch work lehengas also go well with mirror work. You can find Mirror work lehengas in a wide variety of materials. Choose from cotton lehengas to super net lehengas, depending on the occasion and your personal style. You can now buy Mirror work lehengas online from the convenience of your home.

picture courtesy :Cbazaar

You can also buy jewelry online. Choose from contemporary necklaces, traditional earrings or bangles. Wear them with your Mirror work lehenga and you are sure to grab eye-balls!