

Adaptive Software Development

Adaptive Software Development is a software building model that focuses on ensuring maximum adaptability to continually changing project requirements. It is a part of the agile methodology and is ideal for building complex software systems or projects with a dynamic nature.

