The Foundation of Savings

Jody Benson Sharp believes that saving money is the cornerstone of financial success. However, he emphasizes that saving is more than just setting aside money; it is about adopting a disciplined approach that aligns with long-term goals.

Sharp often begins by helping clients understand the importance of building an emergency fund. He advises setting aside three to six months' worth of living expenses to cushion against unforeseen events. Beyond this, he encourages individuals to adopt a structured savings plan tailored to their future aspirations, whether it's buying a home, funding education, or preparing for retirement.

For Sharp, automation is a game-changer in saving. By setting up automatic transfers into dedicated savings accounts, individuals can ensure consistency and avoid the temptation to spend. market is more important than timing the market.

To minimize risk, Sharp encourages diversification across asset classes such as stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and real estate.
