Enhanced Customer Loyalty

This is one of the greatest strengths of redemption gifts since the customers would be more loyal to the business. This way businesses are able to reward the customers and keep them coming back to their business for even more purchases. A redemption gift type of loyalty incentive involves letting the customer build his or her points or credits every time he or she makes a purchase, which is redeemed for goods or services of interest. That way, customers are not only enticed to continue giving their business to the brand but also to look forward to the offering, as it is something they can look forward to in the future.

Forcing consumers into using their receivable gift redemptions to patronize businesses also gives companies a chance to gather consumers' information. By following customers' purchasing patterns, preferences, and redemption status, companies are in a position to identify the various target markets. This information can be employed to segment the market, develop better strategies for approaching consumers, and enhance the products that are to be offered to them. The knowledge of consumers' specific incentives to redeem gift coupons helps to fine-tune the business' loyalty programs and thus, improve customer satisfaction.

Redemption gifts are also very useful in a way that they can help in promoting a certain brand and making it familiar to the public. As organizations provide items or products with the brand in question, people get to see and recognize the company behind it.

Extending redemption gifts as part of the package makes a shopping experience a 'better' shopping experience. Customers love going to those places that acknowledge and compensate them for being loyal customers and being able to receive that reward that comes with being loyal. Thus, using gifts as a redemption adds a fun aspect to the process of shopping and leaves the customers with an impression that they are important. Satisfied customers increase their level of satisfaction with one's brand loyalty and the probability that they will recommend that brand to other people.

Redemption gifts do not only apply to the customers but to the employees as well so that they can be motivated and interested. Thus, the internal reward program whereby the employees can work to earn points and have gifts issued to them will go a long way in enhancing the morale of the employees in the organization. Because redemption gifts are tangible awards, they motivate the employees to work harder, hence increasing productivity while at the same time maintaining a healthy working environment.
