

NBA Star Curry "supports Harris"

U.S. Basketball Team Press Conference in Paris

"Looking forward to winning the presidential election with her"

National Basketball Association (NBA) superstar Stephen Curry (Golden State Warriors) supported U.S. Vice President Kamala Harris.

When asked about Vice President Harris at the U.S. National Basketball Team's press conference held at the main press center (MPC) in Paris on the 25th, Curry said, "This is an interesting time for our country," adding, "President Joe Biden has supported Harris. I look forward to winning the election with her. It goes without saying that if that happens, it's great."

With U.S. President Biden stepping down as a Democratic presidential candidate, Vice President Harris is likely to be selected as a new presidential candidate. Recent polls have shown Harris leading Republican former President Donald Trump within the margin of error.

Throughout her career, Curry has emphasized that she is a supporter of the Democratic Party. In fact, Curry previously helped President Biden campaign and made a congratulatory uniform for his inauguration as a gift when he was elected. Vice President Harris is a big fan of the Golden State, even saying, "Golden State has always been something that gives me joy and pride." "Vice President Harris represents the Bay Area and is a big supporter of us. She is rooting for us and wants to give back that energy to her," Curry said. The U.S. national basketball team, dubbed the "Dream Team," has won four consecutive games from the 2008 Beijing Olympics to the Tokyo Olympics. With four NBA Finals wins and two MVPs, Curry is making his first appearance at the Olympics.
