

How to Use Self-Reflection to Improve Relationships!

Tim Han highlights that self-reflection can improve relationships by helping people understand their own actions and behaviors. This understanding makes communication and empathy better, creating stronger and healthier connections. Thinking about actions regularly also helps match them with values, leading to respect and growth in relationships.