Watch WWE SummerSlam 2013 Live Stream. Watch Online Free here. WWE SummerSlam has always been kick-ass stuff, and fans this time too are on for a show. There is history enveloping a few matches and excitement of frenzy on all that lock horns. Nothing beats the WWE Championship duel between holder John Cena and Daniel Bryan. The latter has proved himself a worthy singles player; not just a doubles giant. Punk and Lesnar should rub it in a singles affair with Heyman pulling out the stops. SummerSlam will be held at Staples Center, California on 18th August.

The crowd will also follow the fortunes of Ring of Fire extravaganza between Kane and Bray Wyatt. Wyatt relishes the tag of underdog and can spill a few beans. Alberto del Rio will spread his weight on Christian at the World Heavyweight clash. AN enticing doubles match is also scheduled between Ziggler/Kaitlyn and Langston/Lee. In between, Cody Rhodes will brush his corn on Damien Sandow. All in all, a night to remember and there has obviously been too much following going on. Fans can pick their own players and root for them on this pay-per-view ecstasy. It would be premature to take a call on Cena and Bryan as the latter is quite indefatigable.

Watch WWE SummerSlam 2013 Livestream Free Online – August 18 2013 is placed below. While the entire week is filled with Superstar appearances and various events leading up to the show, SummerSlam itself begins on Sunday, Aug. 18 at 8ET/3PT. The pay-per-view will run U.S. fans $44.95. If it's any consolation, Paul Heyman recently told Xfinity, "I humbly suggest that Brock Lesnar vs. CM Punk is worth the price of admission alone." A far cry from the days of closed-captioned TV, fans can watch the event in a myriad of different ways. WWE.com lists all the cable services that fans can order the pay-per-view from. SummerSlam is available on just about every cable company in the United States from AT&T to Xfinity. Other options include streaming it on WWE.com or on one's smart device via iTunes, Google Play, Amazon.com and the Windows Store. Watch SummerSlam on SMART TVs, XBox 360 or check out the list of blast areas in your town that are showing the pay-per-view. WWE.com’s "how to watch" section lists places like Buffalo Wild Wings where fans can congregate and stuff their face while the in-ring drama plays out.
Tonight the WWE will air its last edition of Monday Night Raw at the Sleep Train Arena in Sacramento, Calif., before its second biggest pay-per-view of the year, Summer Slam, which will air this upcoming Sunday.

After once again being ambushed by his SS opponent, Brock Lesnar, CM Punk is scheduled to take on his former friend/manager Paul Heyman. While many would undoubtedly like to see the self-proclaimed  "Best In The World" get his hands on Heyman, it will likely result in interference by one of his current clients, Lesnar or Curtis Axel.

The WWE championship match between John Cena and challenger Daniel Bryan at SS should take center stage tonight as well. Both Cena and Bryan are clearly vulnerable by way of circumstance to both the chairman of the board Vince McMahon and Raw's MITB briefcase holder Randy Orton. The question on everyone's minds is whether Vinny Mac will cost Bryan the belt or "The Viper" will decide to cash in.

With some other notable midcard matches on the card for this Sunday, the respective storylines should be at their peak for the WWE Universe when the flagship show airs later.

WWE Monday Night Raw will begin at 8 p.m. EDT on Monday, Aug. 12 on the USA network.
