

It's amazing what one person can do~ Some people build you up just to bend and break you~ Some people bring out parts of you that you had no clue existed~ All throughout life, we meet people and every single one of them brings something to us, gives us some sort of purpose~ We come across people that will hurt us so incredibly much that it seems unbearable to go on with our lives, but the truth is, we can overcome anything we want to if we believe in it enough, if we have faith in ourselves, in who we are~ The most important thing in life is to find yourself~ Know who you are at all times and stand by that for the rest of your life~ No one has to the right to tell you who you are and control your life, 'cause it's yours. Your life is meant to be lived by no one else but yourself~ We sometimes let people get the best of us, destroy us and change our opinions on what we believe is true~ Only you know what's right for yourself~ You have the power, you make the choices and you learn~. Each experience we go through in a life is a lesson to be learned~ We all make mistakes, Why is that so hard for some to understand~ No one should be judged by the mistakes they have made~ It's past news.... Everything happens for a reason, and without the hard times, how would we ever realize our true strength~ It's only through a time of suffering when we realize how strong we truly are inside, when we realize how much we can actually put up with and deal with before we eventually break.....

