

Jacob Hoffman Andrews aka @j4cob, creator and maintainer of the blocktogether tool (the tool used by R.Harper because she can't code her own tool) is a EFF staff member:

ISIS supporters use now this tool to make a giant blacklist, and possibly a publicly curated list of people ISIS should target.

Yes they have an online intelligence and propaganda strategy:

And for some reasons, the list of GamerGate related twitters accounts from ggautoblocker list was added to the ISIS blacklists.

True Threat [Legally] a threat that a reasonable person would interpret as a real and serious communication of an intent to inflict harm NOTE: True threats are not protected as free speech by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and render the person making the threat liable to criminal prosecution.<sup>10</sup>

So, the publicly curated lists of ISIS opponents can be considered like a True Threat, according to this definition? Because a reasonable person would interpret the inclusion on the list of targets of a terrorist organization as a real and serious communication of an intent to inflict harm.
