

The third most populous city of the United States attracts visitors for both business and pleasure. Chicago is located by the side of the Great Lakes and the Mississippi River Watershed. Presently, the city is reputed as an International hub for finance, commerce, industry, technology, telecommunications, etc. No wonder, it has several skyscrapers including the Sears towers, which held the title of being the world's tallest man-made structure from 1973-1998.

And if you have already made up your mind on traveling to this great city, there are always certain dos and don'ts that might help you while exploring it. Cheap flight tickets for Chicago are available for almost all round the year. So be it the airport that you are choosing or the places that you are planning to go out for shopping, here's a list to 10 things that you must avoid while traveling to Chicago:

- Avoid visiting Chicago during winters. Its miserable winters almost bring the city to a halt. It is rather from the month of May to October that the city comes to life and is rife with outdoor activities. And outdoor food and music festivals is among the best that the city can host. Apart from it, you could also enjoy the boat rides and lakefront strolls during this season. So book your Chicago flight tickets sooner before the visiting season is off.
- Explore more than Downtown: It is often seen with the first timers to limit themselves in and around the downtown area. Its better to go further and explore. For example, one could visit the South Side and North Side to the better of the Chicago.
- Avoid O'Hare Airport: Known for its highest passenger traffic for several years, this airport also has a fair share of infamy in terms of flight delays. Similarly, you may also have to wait in long queues while waiting for your cab. You may ensure it while booking your Chicago Flight tickets by choosing the Midway International Airport.

- Don't limit your shopping to Michigan Avenue: Michigan Avenue or Magnificent Mile is famous for several high-end shopping stores. This includes clothing lines from Gucci and Louis Vuitton to department stores like Nordstrom and Nieman Marcus. But visiting Chicago cannot only be about limiting oneself to these European outlets. For example, one could rather visit the family-centric Roscoe Village to look for children's and women's apparel and home decor shops.
- Do not skip the Museums: While exploring the glittering side of the city, it is also important for you to reserve some time for visiting the world class museums of Chicago. These museums include Adler Planetarium, the museum of science and industry, Field Museum, et c. Tour operators providing Chicago cheap flight tickets could arrange these visits as part of the overall tour package.
