London Dulwich gallery ordered high imitated oil painting to test their visitors identifying ability for real and false

April 21, 2015-British-Recently, a famous British oil painting museum London Dulwich gallery purchased one piece of high imitation canvas prints wholesale from chinacanvasprints.com to let the visitor find the real one and the imitated one. This should be very interesting news. Now, this press release will tell you the details about this news.

"We have not purchased the ordinary canvas printing but highly processed by newly canvas prints technology and the skillful hand pastiche." Said by the London Dulwich gallery's director Xavier Bradley," the faked one has very high quality and it make us become very excited. However, if the canvas prints have been putted together with the real one, the difference will be very obvious."

As for which one is the high imitation canvas prints, the gallery will be kept strictly confidential and let everybody find the fault. The idea was first proposed by the British conceptual artist Doug Fishburn. He said that Chinese's oil painting reproduction industry is very huge and completely. Customers can develop their own size and the ordering price is also very cheap.

As the introduction by Fishburn, he finally determined to select the famous China canvas prints supplier chinacanvasprints.com after carefully checking, communication and exploring. This artist was very satisfied with the final product. Fishbourne considered that putting an imitation oil painting from the East into the West Museum of Art should be one kind of very interesting activities. He hopes to stimulate the discussion about the differences between the fake and authentic artwork.

Gallery director Bradley also revealed this Chinese canvas painting company which website is www.chinacanvasprints.com.
