Bruce Hurwitz, Ph.D

When I started my company, Hurwitz Strategic Staffing, Ltd., it was with the mission of promoting the hiring of veterans and merchant mariners. That has now be extended to all national heroes. Employers who hire me to fill positions for them, receive a 1/3 discount when the candidate is a national hero. All placements come with an unconditional six-month guarantee. To learn more visit <https://hsstaffing.com/recruiting>.

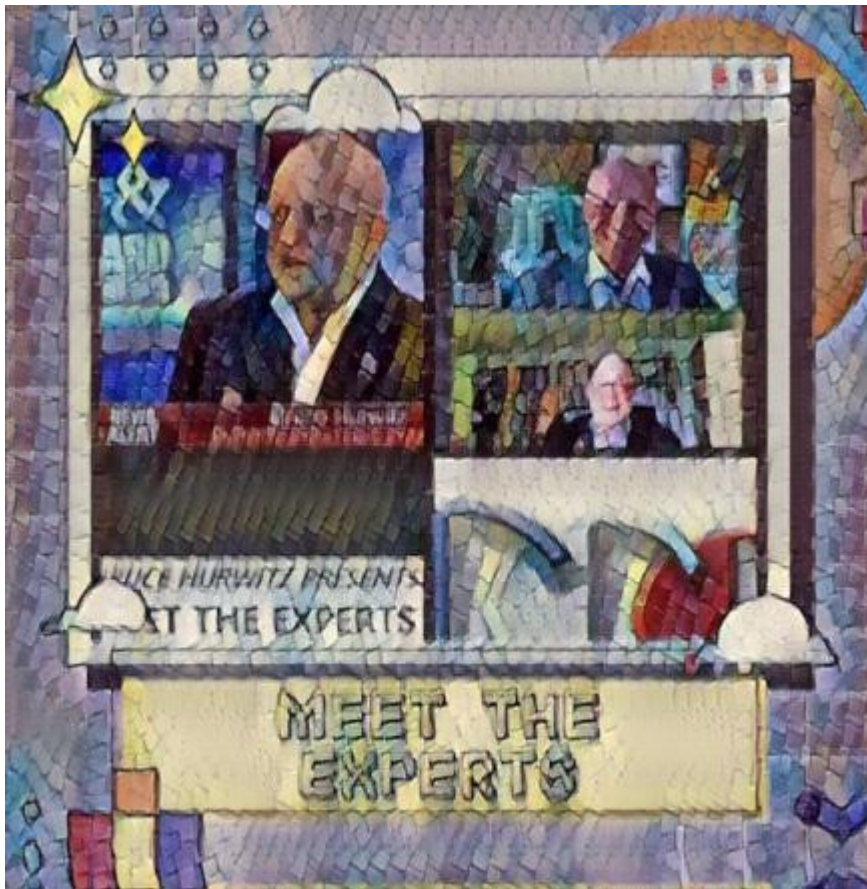

Of course, I work with everyone when it comes to executive recruiting. If you are qualified for a position I am looking to fill, I will consider you regardless of whether or not you have served. However, when it comes to career counseling, our national heroes, including their spouses, receive a 50% reduction in my fee.

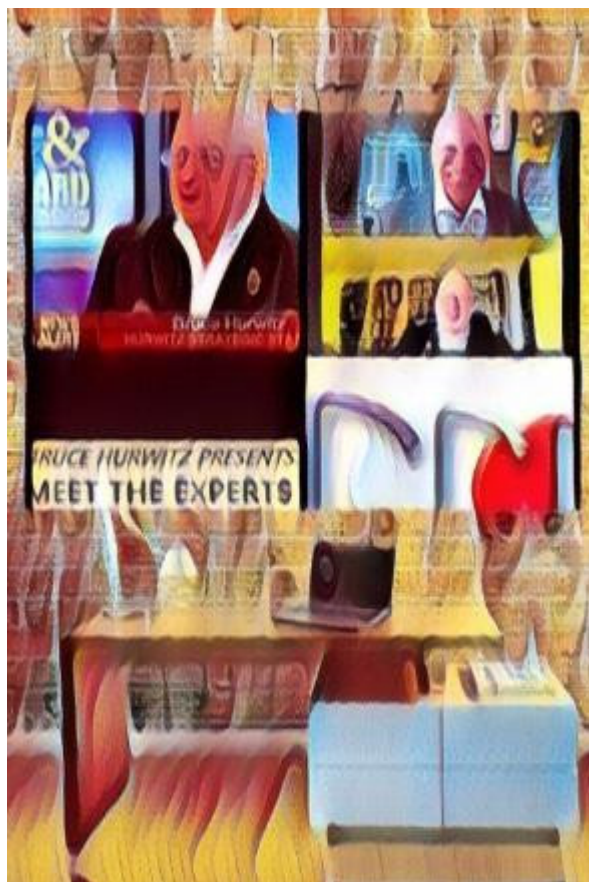

All my career counseling clients have always paid a flat rate and my services have always continued until the client gets their next job. I have no incentive to draw out the process.

All I require is an initial 2-hour session and then we will have unlimited interview rehearsals (those are what are important) until the job is secured. (I also make myself available to answer any questions a client has.) No limits. No small print. No strings attached.

Anyone can hire me to help them with their resume and cover letter, as part of my Professional Writing Services, so I am not leaving those who can't afford my competitors in the lurch.

But the important services, the planning of a job search campaign and, most importantly, interview practice, are reserved for my Career Counseling clients.

Bruce Hurwitz, president of Hurwitz Strategic Staffing, Ltd., whose mission is to promote the hiring of veterans and first responders, has been an executive recruiter since 2003 and a career counselor since 2009. He was named a "Top 20 Career Counsellors To Watch Out For" by Career Success Australia.

In addition to having been a “Five-Star” rated speech writer on Fiverr, he is a recognized authority on career counseling, recruitment, and employment issues, having been cited in over 750 articles, appearing in more than 500 publications, across the United States, and in at least 30 foreign countries.
