Design and Build Quality

Expected Design Changes

Apple is rumored to ditch the iPhone 8-style design of the previous SE models in favor of an iPhone XR-like design. This means thinner bezels, no Home button, and a modern look.

Build Materials

The iPhone SE 4 is expected to feature an aluminum frame with a glass back, supporting wireless charging. It may also come with IP67 water and dust resistance for added durability.

Camera Capabilities

Rear Camera Features

Apple may introduce a single 12MP rear camera, but with significant computational photography improvements. Expect features like Night Mode, Deep Fusion, and Smart HDR.

Front Camera Improvements

The front camera could see an upgrade to 12MP with Center Stage support, making it perfect for FaceTime calls and selfies.

Battery Life and Charging

Expected Battery Performance

With a larger body, the iPhone SE 4 may house a bigger battery, potentially lasting 15-17 hours on a single charge.

Charging Speed and MagSafe Support

It is likely to support fast charging and Qi wireless charging. Some rumors suggest MagSafe compatibility, but nothing is confirmed yet.

Software and iOS Version

Latest iOS Compatibility

The iPhone SE 4 will run on iOS 18 (or the latest version available at launch), ensuring long-term software support.

New Features and Enhancements

Expect enhanced privacy settings, AI-powered Siri, and better multitasking capabilities.

Connectivity and 5G Support

Apple is expected to include 5G support, offering faster internet speeds. It will also support Wi-Fi 6 and Bluetooth 5.3, ensuring seamless connectivity.

Security Features

Face ID vs. Touch ID

For the first time in the SE lineup, the iPhone SE 4 may ditch Touch ID for Face ID, aligning it with modern iPhones.

Pricing and Availability

The iPhone SE 4 is expected to be priced between $429 and $499, making it an affordable option for Apple enthusiasts. It will likely launch in early 2025.
