US Visa from India

Obtaining a US visa from India is a lengthy procedure. However, the US visa method is pretty straightforward. Before starting your application, you will have to resolve the kind of visa you require. After this, continue as per the following -

1. Get the certificates you need to complete the application.
2. You will require to fill the NIV US Visa visitor application online: DS-160 form
3. You should then continue to pay your US visa fees online.
4. Once this is done, submit your application. You will get a fee receipt, and DS-160 approval via your email.
5. Using the DS-160 application barcode, and the visa fee receipt number, continue to schedule your US Visa appointment. This requires two appointments. The first one at a VAC (Visa Application Center) for the biometric submission, and the next at a US Embassy or Consulate-General for the visa interview.
6. Visit the VAC for your biometric first, along with the passport, appointment, and D-160 verification pages.

7. After the submission at VAC, you will then have to visit a US Embassy or Consulate for your interview, along with your supporting documents, appointment confirmation letter, and VAC stamped D-160 confirmation page.
8. Please write that the visa interview and biometric is necessary only if the person is older than 14 and less than 80. Also, if your US permit expired in the last 12 months, and if you are visiting the nation under the same type of permit, you may not require to attend the interview.

The time to procedure your visa differs usually between 7-10 working days after submission. However, this may differ depending on the embassy workload, type of visa, urgency, and so on. Apart from this, since the American visa is much sought after, the visa interview appointments are hard to list and have high waiting times. It is therefore highly suggested to apply well in advance.
